SAM JONES commenced a series of revival meetings in Kansas City last Sunday. He has announced his purpose of remaining there four weeks, and is expected to be joined by Sam Small in a few days. The Times is making very favorable mention of this great revivalist, and is publishing most of his ser ous. We think this a capital idea on the part of the Times' managers. It may indicate a purpose on their part to lead different lives. If they have any such notion as this, let them warm up to Sam Jones, and he will come as near putting them on the right track as the next man.
